

Alan Chandler – Global Strategy Manger, Market Infrastructure, Energy & Utilities

Alan Chandler is responsible for Market Infrastructure strategy within LogicaCMGs Energy and Utilities business . He leads the development of the global strategy for wholesale market and meter data management solutions that enable competition in Electricity and Gas, and is also responsible for selection and management of our key solution partners.

Alan has been in LogicaCMG for 34 years. He has held senior roles as a technical strategist, responsible for product strategy, IT infrastructure and software engineering techniques; as a line manager responsible, for the financial performance of a unit of 70 people; and as a global business developer understanding the detail of electricity liberalisation and the related market rules. Using that knowledge he has helped local LogicaCMG units around the world set up Energy and Utility practices and has supported them in winning and then delivering key projects.

Alan joined Logica in 1972 from Imperial College London where he graduated with a degree in Electrical Engineering.
